Where People and Nature Play

Golf has been an important part of Scotland’s culture and landscape for hundreds of years.

In local communities across the country, and at world-famous courses and tournaments, the golf environment is a gathering place where people and nature can play.

Find out more about what’s going on in the golf environment at golfenvironment.org

The John Muir Trust is an official Ryder Cup Green Drive outreach project